

Houston U @ Utah 10/24 07:10 PM

The Cougars have covered the spread in all six of their Big XII road games since last season.

North Dakota State @ New Mexico 10/24 07:10 PM

The Lobos have provided mostly-good spread value since head coach Jason Eck arrived last year from Idaho, standing 13-5 vs. the number since.

Mississippi @ Texas 10/24 04:10 PM

When favored by at least three points in an SEC game, Texas has gone 5-14 against the spread under Steve Sarkisian.

USC @ Wisconsin 10/24 04:10 PM

Note the Trojans are just 1-9 vs. the line in Big Ten road games outside of California since joining the loop in 2024 (the W came on October 10 at Penn State).

Utah State @ Texas State 10/24 04:10 PM

Utah State has covered eight of ten chances as an underdog since head coach Bronco Mendenhall arrived in Logan last season.

Colorado @ Oklahoma State 10/24 04:10 PM

Colorado is 1-6 against the spread in its last seven Big XII road games. Oklahoma State's last four games against FBS-level foes have gone over the total.

San Diego State @ Colorado State 10/24 03:10 PM

Dropping four straight vs. the line (counting an earlier 41-23 loss to BYU as a spread L), the Rams have dropped to 4-11 vs. the spread in their last 15 games on the board since early last season.

Boise State @ Washington State 10/24 03:10 PM

Note the Cougars had landed "under" in four of five this season vs. FBS foes before last week's high-scoring affair at Oregon State. The Broncos, however, have gone 5-1 to the over in this campaign.

San Jose State @ Nevada 10/24 02:10 PM

After San Jose State and USC combined for 68 points in the Week 0 opener, the Spartans' last six games have all stayed under the total.

UL Monroe @ Troy 10/24 01:10 PM

Dating back to the end of last season, the under is 11-1 in Troy's last 12 games.

Kansas State @ Arizona State 10/24 12:10 PM

No spread covers in the last three or four of the last five this season for the Sun Devils, while the visiting Wildcats broke their own three-game spread slump in last week's comeback win over Kansas.

Texas A&M @ Alabama 10/24 12:10 PM

Over the last 2+ seasons, Alabama has played in four games where the Crimson Tide failed to score more than ten points. Alabama played a total of three such games in the 17 seasons under Nick Saban.

Tennessee U @ South Carolina 10/24 12:10 PM

Each of the last five editions in this SEC series have gone over the total.

Boston College @ Georgia Tech 10/24 12:10 PM

Boston College has covered the number in each of the last four meetings in this ACC matchup, with all four of those games going over the total.

Michigan State @ UCLA 10/24 12:10 PM

The unbeaten and now top-10 Bruins have been a revelation on many fronts for first-year head coach Bob Chesney, as UCLA is now 6-0 SU and 5-0-1 vs. the line heading into this weekend.

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Sacramento State @ Ball State 10/24 12:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Sacramento State has lost its last five games by an average of 33.0 points per game, including a 48-7 home loss to Ohio last week. The Hornets are 0-4 straight-up and against the spread in MAC play, falling short of point spread expectations by an average of 17.0 points per game.                              |
| Bowling Green @ Buffalo U 10/24 12:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| The road team has won each of the last five installments of this MAC matchup.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Oregon @ Illinois 10/24 12:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| The Ducks have covered just two of their last eight games against FBS-level opposition since late last season.                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| West Virginia @ TCU 10/24 09:10 AM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| West Virginia has covered the spread in eight of the last nine meetings with TCU.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| California @ SMU 10/24 09:10 AM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| The under is 5-1 in Cal's last six games. The host Mustangs haven't covered the spread in four-straight (that's counting last Saturday as a push vs. Virginia at most 'books).                                                                                                                                        |
| Air Force @ Wyoming 10/23 06:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Some spread successes lately for Wyoming in this "Elevation Bowl" vs. the Force, with the Cowboys covering the last four meetings.                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Duke @ Virginia 10/23 04:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| This will be the third meeting in less than 12 months between the Blue Devils and Cavaliers. Virginia earned a 34-17 road win at Duke in the regular season, and the Blue Devils got revenge with an overtime win in the ACC Championship Game three weeks later. Both contests stayed under their respective totals. |
| Massachusetts @ Connecticut 10/23 04:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Five of UMass' last six games have stayed under the total.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| East Carolina @ Memphis 10/22 04:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Since allowing 48 points to Alabama in the opener, East Carolina's last five games have all stayed under the total.                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Liberty @ Kennesaw State 10/22 04:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Dating back to the end of last season, seven of Kennesaw's last eight games have stayed under the total.                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| New Mexico State @ Sam Houston St 10/21 05:10 PM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| The home team has won-and-covered all three meetings since Sam Houston joined New Mexico State in Conference-USA. All three meetings in this series have stayed under the total.                                                                                                                                      |